Did you know that the telegraph was invented out of greif? In 1825, Samuel Morse was hired to travel too paint a portrit. While he was away his wife suddenly fell ill. It took days for the news of her illness to reach him, and she was already dead and buried by the time he arrived home. He was so upset that he quit his art career and focusing on developing a faster weigh to communicate. His passion led him to create a single-wire machine that transmited text information as a series of on-off tones lights or clicks that could be understood by a skilled listener or observer this is now known as Morse code.
